(LF) Fund of Funds - Balanced Blend Europe

The defining moments of 2016 were the global growth scare in January-February, the subsequent recovery of equities and commodities in spring, the Brexit surprise in June and the surprisingly short market reaction and finally the biggest surprise, the US Presidential elections that triggered an equities rally and a corresponding correction in Government Bonds. The year started with a pronounced correction in equities on fears about earnings, global growth and the limits of monetary policy. Equity markets bottomed in February and then swiftly recovered until May. The Brexit surprise was weathered well at a global level as the short lived correction in European Equities was compensated by the rise of US equities on a more benign rates outlook. The US Presidential elections surprise provided an extra leg to the equities rally as first the US and then the European markets rose on expectations of tax cuts, reflationary infrastructure spending and deregulation. Emerging markets were the surprise outperformer in the equities sphere, helped by the recovery in commodities and the expansionary policy in China. Among the developed markets the US was the clear outperformer, followed by Japan while European equities lagged. Government Bonds in the US and Europe had a strong performance in the first half of the year, however they have gave back their gains in the second half, abruptly so after the US Elections. Investment Grade Bonds feared better than Government Bonds, however the clear outperformer in the Fixed Income sphere were the High Yield Bonds. Commodities experienced a strong recovery in 2016 from the multi-year lows of December, led by rising oil prices. The rise was more evident in the January- April period and then again in November and December helped by the prospect of US reflation and the OPEC deal to control oil production. Real Estate Assets weighed initial fears about rising rates and had yet another positive year. Only the UK Real Estate recorded loses under the combined effects of Brexit and the depreciation of the GBP. The USD was strengthened after the US elections.

The (LF) Fund of Funds - Balanced Blend-Europe/Eurobank class returned 0.25% in the year ending 31/12/2016, a lower performance than the composite index used as the fund's benchmark. The fund was underweight equities throughout the year with the average exposure in equities ranging between 37.0% and 49.2%. The underweight position was reduced in the last quarter. Exposure to Fixed Income was mostly overweight, reaching 56.5% in July, but it was reduced to underweight in the last quarter, falling to 49.2% at the end of the year. We had an underweight position in Government Bonds throughout the year and a consistently overweight position in Non-Government Bonds.

(LF) Fund of Funds - Equity Blend

The year started with a pronounced correction in equities on fears about earnings, Global growth and the limits of monetary policy. Equity markets bottomed in February and then recovered swiftly until May. The Brexit surprise was weathered well at a global level as the short lived correction in European Equities was compensated by the rise of US equities on a more benign rates outlook. The US Presidential elections surprise provided an extra leg to the rally as first the US and then the European Equities rose on expectations of tax cuts, reflationary infrastructure spending and deregulation. Emerging markets were the surprise outperformer in the equities sphere, helped by the recovery in commodities and the expansionary policy in China. Among the developed markets the US was the clear outperformer, followed by Japan while European equities lagged.

The (LF) Fund of Funds - Equity Blend/Eurobank class returned 4.55% in the year ending 31/12/2016, a lower performance than the composite index used as the fund's benchmark (90% MSCI ACWI +10% Eonia). During the year the average exposure was around 90.6% slightly above that of the benchmark. We adopted a cautious approach in the first half of the year on concerns about weak earnings, rising interest rates and slowing EM growth.

The underweight position in the first half of the year, especially in the first quarter, had a negative impact on the fund's performance and accounts for the major part of the underperformance. We had a pronounced underweight stance on Emerging Markets and were underweight US equities. We were overweight Europe equities until the Brexit referendum in Britain. We adopted an overweight stance in July and throughout the second half of the year by adopting an overweight position in Emerging Markets, Japan and after the US elections in the US. We were underweight European equities in the second half.

(LF) Fund of Funds - Global Emerging Markets

2016 was a positive year for Emerging Markets. After a weak beginning of the year emerging markets staged an impressive recovery from February to September. Low valuations and the recovery of oil and commodity prices contributed to a sharp recovery of commodity dependent markets. Brazil was the main outperformer helped by rising iron ore prices and market friendly political developments. Russia outperformed as well on better oil prices and signs of stabilization of the economy. Fears about a slowdown of the Chinese economy did not materialize as government spending and credit growth supported the economy. Chinese equities managed to reverse their steep losses of the beginning of the year. India was an underperformer despite the acceleration of the reform process. Mexico underperformed as well as the prospect of deteriorating trading relations with the US weighed on the market and currency. After the US Elections the prospect of higher US rates and the strong USD led to a sharp correction in Emerging Markets. The main exception was Russia, propped up by the prospect of better US-Russia relations and rising oil prices.

The (LF) Fund of Funds - Global Emerging Markets/Eurobank class returned 7.89% in the year ending 31/12/2016, a lower performance than the composite index used as the fund's benchmark (MSCI Emerging Markets Index). On average, the fund had a 92.1% exposure to EM Equities, with a more pronounced underweight position in the first and the last quarters of the year. The main overweight positions during 2016 were Russia and India while the main underweight positions were Brazil and South Africa. The underweight position in Brazil and the relatively low overall market exposure during the first 4 months of the year were the main reasons for the fund's underperformance.

(LF) Fund of Funds - Balanced Blend Global

The defining moments of 2016 were the global growth scare in January-February, the subsequent recovery of equities and commodities in spring, the Brexit surprise in June and the surprisingly short market reaction and finally the biggest surprise, the US Presidential elections that triggered an equities rally and a corresponding correction in Government Bonds. Investment Grade Bonds fared better than Government Bonds, however the clear outperformer in the Fixed Income sphere were the High Yield Bonds. Commodities experienced a strong recovery in 2016 from the multi-year lows of December, led by rising oil prices. The rise was more evident in the January- April period and then again in November and December helped by the prospect of US reflation and the OPEC deal to control oil production. Real Estate Assets weighed initial fears about rising rates and had yet another positive year. Only the UK Real Estate recorded losses under the combined effects of Brexit and the depreciation of the GBP. The USD was strengthened after the US elections.

(LF) Fund of Funds - Balanced Blend Global/Eurobank class returned 5.28% in the year ending 31/12/2016, a lower performance than the composite index used as the fund's benchmark (40% MSCI AC WORLD + 45% BofA ML EMU BROAD MARKET INDEX + 10% BLOOMBERG COMMODITY INDEX + 5% FTSE EPRA/NAREIT DEVELOPED INDEX). The fund was underweight equities throughout the year with the average exposure in equities ranging between 34.7% and 40.1%. The underweight position was more pronounced in the first quarter and was gradually reduced during the second half to end the year at neutral levels. The increase in equity exposure resulted mainly from the increase of US equities positions from underweight to overweight in the last quarter, especially after the US elections. Positions in Europe and EM remained underweight throughout the year while exposure to Japan turned overweight in the last quarter. Exposure to Fixed Income was overweight in the first quarter, reaching 49.6% at the end of May and then declined to end the year at an underweight 37.8%. We had a pronounced underweight position in Government Bonds throughout the year mirrored by a consistently overweight position in Non Government Bonds. Exposure to Commodities was underweight up to May and then gradually increased to overweight, reaching 13.6% at the end of the year. Exposure to Real Estate was mostly underweight, ranging from 3.8% to 5.1%.

(LF) Fund of Funds - Real Estate

Real Estate securities had yet another year of positive returns in spite of the weak performance in the first couple of months, the negative reaction of European Assets to the Brexit referendum and the correction triggered by the surprise results of the US presidential Election in November. Expectations that the Fed would proceed cautiously with rates led to a strong performance of US Real Estate from mid-February to the end of July. The relative outperformance of US Assets was compounded by the strong performance of the USD against the Euro. The best returns however were recorded by Australian Real Estate Assets. The main underperformer was the UK, where Real Estate Assets recorded negative returns as the sector was one of the main losers of Brexit. The losses were compounded by the huge depreciation of the GBP. Continental Europe Real Estate performed better, registering small gains for the year. The initial huge gains of Asian Real Estate in the were significantly reduced in the fourth quarter after the Presidential elections.

The (LF) Fund of Funds - Real Estate Eurobank class returned 1.63% in the year ending 31/12/2016, a lower performance than the composite index used as the fund's benchmark (50% FTSE/EPRA NAREIT Developed + 50% FTSE/EPRA NAREIT N. America). On average the fund had a 93.3% exposure to Real Estate equities. We kept relatively low exposure levels in the first quarter as the risk of rising US rates and adverse developments in Emerging markets led us to adopt underweight positions in the North American Real Estate Assets and the Emerging Markets. We had an overweight Europe position at the time of the Brexit referendum.

In September we increased our positions in Asia-Pacific to overweight while in October we further reduced our positions to North America and reduced our Europe exposure to neutral. In December we reduced our underweight position in North America. The underweight position in the first quarter, the overweight Europe position before Brexit and the strength of the USD accounted for most of the underperformance.

(LF) Fund of Funds - Dynamic Fixed Income

The defining moments of 2016 were the global growth scare in January-February, the subsequent recovery of equities and commodities in spring, the Brexit surprise in June and the surprisingly short market reaction and finally the biggest surprise, the US Presidential elections that triggered an equities rally and a corresponding correction in Government Bonds. The year started with a pronounced correction in equities on fears about earnings, global growth and the limits of monetary policy. Equity markets bottomed in February and then swiftly recovered until May. Only the UK Real Estate recorded loses under the combined effects of Brexit and the depreciation of the GBP. The USD was strengthened after the US elections.

(LF) Fund of Funds - Dynamic Fixed Income invests in at least 10 of the top ranked fixed income funds according to our selection process and unless required, each of the selected investment carries an equal weight (at rebalancing). Rebalancing takes place at least four times a year, within the 1st month of each calendar quarter, or more often if so is deemed necessary. The sub-fund's Eurobank I class recorded a 8.86% return during the year ending 31/12/2016, better than the performance of the benchmark index (BOFA ML GLOBAL BROAD MARKET INDEX). Average exposure to bonds increased gradually during the year, starting from 83% in January and reaching 96.6% at the end of December. Funds containing High Yield Bonds were favoured by the selection process in 2016 resulting to an overweight position that contributed to the outperformance of the sub-fund.
